Democrat of high enough standing to have been State Treasurer of West Virginia; that the question which brought down the displeasure of the court and of the Register, was put by a Democrat; and that there were but four Republicans on the jury, which, as soon as it left the box, stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction, with qualifications.

In the line of the lecture of the court, totally unmerited by eleven of the jurors; in line with the persistent and malicious assaults of the Register, was what Colonel O'Brien well termed District Attorney Watter's "parting shot at the jury." The phrase was well chosen, expressing the spirit of the offense.

In view of all that has been hurled at this jury and others which refused to convict without the evidence to justify conviction, it may be asked whether

The Senate Serves Notice. By the rejection of Mr. Halstead the Senate of the United States serves notice on the press of the country that it will readily avail itself of the first opportunity to get even with any journalis who severely criticises that body for what it does or fails to do. To give the greater force to the notice, it is made non-partisan, Senators of each party signing it with their votes against con-

Free Trade Indifference to Suffering

Van Bursa Denslow, LL. D., in American Hail and Expert Journal.

The quality of human nature was never more conspicuously illustrated than by the great and philanthrophic Richard Cobden, the foremost apostle of low duties on the importation of foreign competing products, For in 1846-7, when the cry came up from Ireland that the repeal of the corn laws had brought rain to the Irish farmers, it was accompanied by this argument: Under protection to corn, bad crops had previously been so well compensated by high prices the Irish farmers would frequently sell a scant crop for a better price, than an abundant one. This would generally lead to a larger planting the next year. Thus the effect of every scant crop had been to extend the area of tillage, increase the use of manure and keep the capacity of the country up to its increase in population. But with the repeal of the corn laws the Irish farmers were met by a new combination, a scant crop and a low price, together with a heavy drain of gold to pay for imported corn and a consequent bank crisis and financial panic, all of which could only lead to an abandonment of tillage.

In this crisis it was known that the Anti-Corn Law Lesgue had a full treasury and no legitimate channel for expending it. An appeal was confidently made to it, the spirit of which was in effect, of course, this: "You cannot deny that this crisis and famine are in part, the result of our taking your dose, for you predicted it would hart us some, but the benefits to you would more than make up for the injury to us. Your predictions have been verified and your selfishness has been severe. Now, therefore, kindly give us a little aid, though it be but in the name of sweet charity, out of the several millions of pounds sterling of league funds for which you now have no use."

But the shrewd and contemplative Colden did not lose his head in their effects, of course, this ergerency. He remembered the stars The quality of human nature was

It is to be hoped that the Democratic newspapers of the State will not fall to note this fact and to fiall the politicians who misled them into saying ugly things about an honest man.

Conceraing Trial by Jury.

Juror O'Brien had sufficent and long continued provocation for the unusual part he played in the United States Court on Saturday last. He was foreman of the jury which acquitted young Myers, in which case the judge took occasion to administer a stinging rebuke to the whole jury for a question improperly put to the court by one juror.

That lecture was seized by the Register for the purposes of most unfair comments on the whole jury. These comments were not confined to the columns of the Register, but were telegraphed over the country by its employees. None of the malicious publications in the Register and none of the displactness sent from its office conveyed the information that Col. O'Brien, foreman of the jury, is a Democrat of high enough standing to have been State Treasurer of West Virginia; that the question which brought down the displacency of the court and inflantiropist—the, brilliant Cobden, should be a bankrupt and an impecunious case, in short, and contemplative Cobden did not lose his head in this sterling of league funds for which you now have no user."

But the shrowd and contemplative Cobden did not lose his head in this energency. He remembered the stern bligations of honor which the sequency which the sterous and too anonymous to be consulted on this or any other occasion. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When flus tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.
